Gatekeeper Receives New Contract with Anchorage School District Alaska

Abbotsford, BC July 2nd, 2013 Gatekeeper Systems Inc (The “Company” or “Gatekeeper”) (TSX.V: GSI) is pleased to announce it has entered into another contract with Anchorage School District Alaska to provide the latest in digital school bus video technology. Video technology helps administrators’ to provide a safer environment for the students.

This is the second contract awarded to Gatekeeper with a total of 130 Gatekeeper systems installed on Anchorage School District owned buses.

Gatekeeper’s high resolution video system is designed to meet military specifications allowing the system to power up at minus 40 degrees Celsius and operate in extreme rough road conditions. The G4 Incident Management software allows video management personnel to share video in a secure environment with hundreds of users without the need to download software on every desk top.

“Anchorage School District is ranked in the top 100 largest school districts in the United States and is one of the most rugged wilderness areas in the world. Gatekeeper’s mobile video system is designed to withstand extreme weather fluctuation, shock and vibration, as well as, providing superior night vision image. Gatekeeper is excited to partner with the Anchorage School District to assist them in creating a safer and secure environment for the children who ride the District school bus,” said Doug Dymont President and CEO of Gatekeeper. Dymont added, “Gatekeeper is receiving rave reviews from its customers with its latest software and technology platform designed for rugged environments. With over 550,000 yellow school buses in North America, Gatekeeper is well positioned to continue driving the niche vehicle.”
